

My act Report

Today i want to share 4 really interesting insights

So we all have animals that we like and love but today iam going to focus on one of the most loyal animals ever and is in the top 5 when it comes to being smart and emotional the one loved by billions DOGS!! Many of us love dogs and the dogs love us and i had the opportunity to answer some of the questions about dogs using the data from the weratedogs account on twitter by asking the api and other things and after some Dog investigations i found 4 beautiful insights about dogs and the account!!

The 1st insight:

Have you ever wondered which is the most loved dog breeds?
I did!! And so began looking and coding and until i found the answer

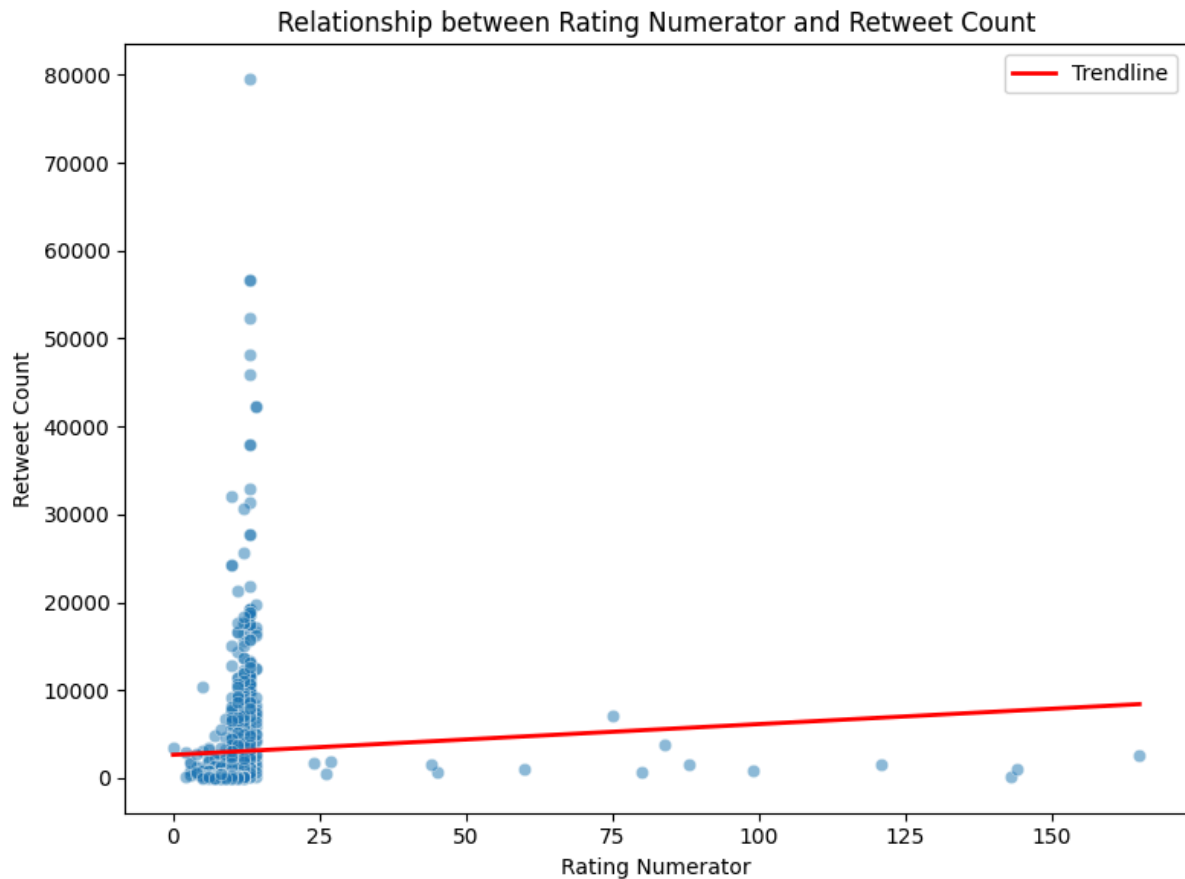

According to the data from the weratedogs account this big and thin cute dog is the most loved!! I can see where that came from!!!
Right after Saluki breeds comes the French bulldog and honestly if i tried to guess the rankings i think i would have gotten this one right

2nd insight:

This one is related to the account so i looked at the account and found that it rates almost every dog it finds and so it came to my mind that maybe there would be a relation between how popular a dog is with how someone rates them and then i found something shocking!

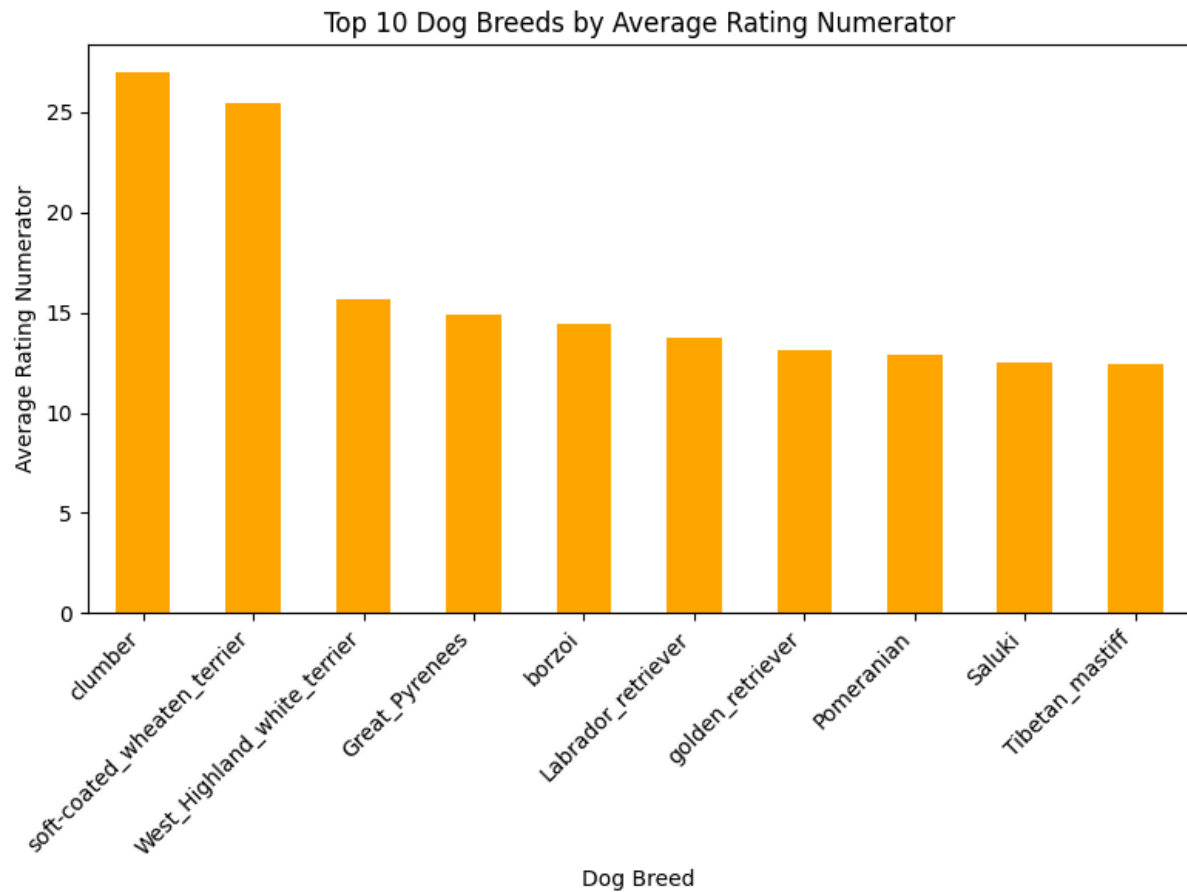

From the figure it appears that there's no relation strong enough to have a meaning. Now I should say the place where many of the posts got high retweet count was because most of the time the account would rate the dogs 13 out of 10

Note: updated the scatter plot with a trendline which was a good suggestion

3rd insight:

Now some simple fun facts from this account would be great!!

Looks like the clumber is one of the most respected dogs as it adorable,playful and fluffy!! No wonder they got the highest ratings average

4th insight:

I investigated to confirm my guess on who is the most famous dog in the world according to the data from the account aaaand as expected it was the Golden retriever...

Thank you for reading this i hope you an amazing day!!

I mean who wouldn't love this little guy?!